#3 looks like the main speed, adds blinkers today, 3rd off, decent connections, should be gone. Might take a flyer, depending on the odds, of 3/1,2 double.

Looks like the track handicapper thinks one of only three horses can win, but doesn't have a clue which one.

Just for fun: DD: 3 with 1,2. P3: 3 with 1,2 with 1,2. P4: 3 with 1,2 with 1,2 with 2,3,4,5.

#1 nice win in last in race taken off turf; best last pace; closer in the one-hole, excellent connections, may be in the lead by default.

#2 had best race of all two back, TDS against tougher ATDS; great connections. #3 top last fig, good connections, hot work ten days ago,

#4 top fig ATDS on form 3 back; steps up to NHL. #5 excellent connections, won ATDS against similar 5 back with this jock, 3rd off, trouble in last.

#1 looks quickest, may wire if jock goes for the lead. If there's too much heat the jock can relax and try to close, which brings the rest of the field into contention.

specifically the #2, #3, and #4.

I'm thinking the #1 and #2.

#1 is the best closer, 2nd best fig avg, BTL in last. #2 PP7T horse, gets Stevens, probably the quickest, may wire. #4 adds blinkers. #5 good win in last ATDS, 3rd off, keeps Glenn; figs a bit weak.
Looks like #2 tries to wire, and may do it. #1 may catch him. #5 might get into the trifecta, but don't like him for the win.

The #4 and #5 might appear to be the obvious choices in here, both closers. Problem is they both start from way in the back. If, for example, the #2 or #3 gets an easy lead, they might not be able to make up enough ground, especially coming out of the chute; neither of them could in their last here ATDS. Hernandez has never gotten the #2 out first in 8 races; nor has Samuels ever done it with the #3. However, the #3 has wired on dirt in the past in a very quick race.
All that said, it looks like a duel up front, with the #5 or #4 picking up the pieces. But I'll give the #3 a chance to wire.
Way too many unknowns to make a confident bet. I'll reluctantly give it to the #5, but he'll have to run his hooves off and get a smart ride.

#1 ran some decent races at ASD, but threw 2 clunkers here; if she can find her ASD form she might be able to walk home here.
#4 closed a bit against similar here in last. #6 ran all kinds of races that would win this last year, but terrible in last three this year.
#7's kind of a BTL in last with a mediocre fig. The #9 has been known to take the lead, as has the #8. Problem is they all have fatal flaws.
What if the #6 is healthy? She'd look like Secretariat against these. #3 was quickest out of the gate in last and died, which is her habit.
An unbettable race for me. Maybe Glenn can get #3 in front and coax her home, but probably not. Maybe the #9 will improve on her last.
I hate the #1, but maybe that's the bet.

#7 drops like a rock after setting a quick pace and dying in her last; has wired for thrice the price here 3 back; very nice works since last.
How can she be 10-1 in the ML? I guess because of her poor figs. #3 is 3rd off, last three have been inexplicably terrible; ran races at DMR and SA that would win this. #4 wants the lead, may give the #7 too much competition. #6 trouble in last three, good quickness at EMD to wire similar five back. #9 nice BTL race against similar, lost by a neck.
I'll have to do something with the #7, of course. #6 is the only real closer, so she's probably the winner.

Okay. If he's on his game, I don't see anyone beating the #1; he should overpower the field with his superior speed figures.

#7 might give him a bit of a tussle, and the #9's dropping bigtime, but I don't see anyone else right now.The #5 and/or #8 might slip in for a piece.
