

A very early look at the Preakness.

They ran away and left Simplification in the Derby, with a :21.3 first fraction. Still, he ran a darn good race, starting 15th and winding up 4th. The problem is Pimlico tends toward speed, making that kind of run – and Rich Strike’s even better run – improbable at best. On the other hand, there are at least four horses in this race who like the front end. None of those, however, looks lone or dominant, so we should expect a quick early pace.

The problem is Simplification is in the one-hole, so John and Antonio have to make a choice when the bell rings. The good part of that is he started from the 13-hole in his last, which makes him a PP13T, one of my favorite angles. Looking at his sprints, and at one of his routes, we also see he is capable of pretty good quickness; will Johnny V opt for using it today? Or will he take hold and try to find a way to the front as the race progresses? He may not decide until the race starts, but we have to decide for him before that time.

Jose stays on Early Voting, a confirmed early speed horse who is pretty quick, who did, however, break his maiden pressing and closing. His brother picks up Armagnac, another dedicated early speed horse who has yet to show that he can, indeed, close. They both know, as I’m sure all the jockeys know, that being farther back than third at first and second call makes it difficult, if not impossible, to close and win on the dirt at Pimlico. So I expect a real scramble to first call.

I expect Simplification, Armagnac, and Early Voting will be in front, closely attended by Epicenter, with Secret Oath, Skippy Longstocking, and Creative Minister in the second tier, and Fenwick and Happy Jack at the rear. In fact, I expect Simplification to be a head in front. By 2nd call not much will have changed. As the race progresses, Armagnac will begin to fade, and Simplification, Early Voting, and Epicenter will be neck and neck, with Secret Oath close behind. At the turn Secret Oath makes her move.

I see four horses coming down the stretch, and I believe Simplification and Epicenter will get to the wire first, with Secret Oath and Early Voting a nose or two behind them. Of course, as we know, this all depends on Johnny V using Simplification’s early speed out of the gate. However, if the early speed turns out to be too much for Epicenter and Simplification, I think Secret Oath could sneak by them for the win.

The bottom line: there is no bottom line. But I suspect the winner will be Epicenter, Simplification, or Secret Oath, with Early Voting a somewhat lesser probability. Knowing me, I might play a fairly large exacta with Epicenter and Simplification – I have a soft spot for Candy Ride horses.
