#1 flashed a little speed on turf from the eleven hole two back, then flashed some more from the seven hole in his last, lost by a length against simialr here; picks up Tyer for Asmusen; potential winner, certainly in the mix.
 #2 is a 40% first time starter; nice work a month ago; trainer not good with first timers but okay with maiden sp wt races; worth a look.
 #3 is a 33% first time starter; nice work a week ago; hot trainer jockey combo right now; your guess is as good as mine.
 #4, a 15% first time starter, was bet down a little in his first race, against a bit cheaper; ran like piggy; Santana gets up; good works; adds blinkers; you never know.
 #5 is a 43% first time starter; mediocre works; bred for distance; Murrill's been riding well; why not?
 #6 is 2nd in the morning line for some reason; okay works; lightest weight with warm bug jockey for Amoss; I give.
 #7 about like all the rest, but 0% first time starter; good works; Florent gets up; I'm confused.
 I think #1 is most likely with Tyler picking up the mount, but he'd have to be at least 4-1 before I'd consider a win bet; would use in exotics if I played any.
 Impossible race for me with all those first time starter numbers, plus blinkers angle, plus modified PPOT.

#1 moves into Wiggins barn and Murrill stays; most impressive races seem to have been on turf or on an off track; boring works; rail is strong right now; possible.
 #2 is kind of an allweather guy, with only two races on dirt; ran unimpressively on dirt in his last; boring dirt works; didn't win last year; have to pass.
 #3 really doesn't show me much of anything; would be a shock.
 #4 has the best overall figs; drop/switch; picks up Corey for 2nd start with Kenny (33%); 2nd off 8-month layoff; blinkers off (29%); good works but not since; ran two weeks ago; drops to new low level; looking for a win or looking for a sale? Big shot if he's in it to win it.
 #5 2nd race after claim by Asmusen; third off; Tyler gets up; 85 last 4 avg w/o trouble race; BTL by a neck in last; boring works; nine years old; can the old man do it?
 #6 is 2nd off layoff, 31% angle for Hill; ran okay in last against similar; ok works; below average figs; can't recommend.
 #7 ran like a pig in last after a year vacation; ran some routes last year that might win this; good works, but not since; drop/switch to Florent, who can ride; can he go back to a year ago? Maybe, maybe not.
 Pretty clear to me the best horses are #4, #5, and #7. Problem is they all have potential fatal flaws.

#1 ran okay at 6f in last, here, after bobbling at the start; ok works; Cheminaud 0 for 16 this meet; moves to one-hole; haa aomw quickness, can close.
 #2 also likes the front but has closed once, on synthetic; steps up; Chris stays for Wilkes; okay works; anything's possible, I guess.
 #3 more early speed; drop/switch to Tyler for Asmusen; not as quick as the others; mediocre speed figs; drops to NLL; not with my money on her.
 #4 another frigging speed horse; drop/switch to G Saez for Casse; only one race on dirt so far, a clunker; ok works; don't think so.
 #5 a closer; last three were pretty awful; has won on dirt; ignore the last three and she looks pretty good, but why would you do that? Broke her maiden for 50k here.
 #6 gosh, another early speed horse; couple of races early this year at FG that might be competitive in here; mediocre works; not a fan.
 Cheminaud, on #1, is getting pretty desperate for a win by now, so he'll probably whip JZerts into the lead and try to steal it. Trouble is he'll have a lot of company.
 That could increase chances for #2 and #5. I don't think anyone wins on the front end unless the jocks go to sleep, so I might try #2 and/or #4.

#1 has a couple of nice workouts and is on a hot rail; I figure BJ will push him out of the gate, probably into the lead or close to it. Can he last for 7 furlongs? Well, we won't know that until after the race, will we?

#2 has had plenty of chances at this distance for this price and hasn't gotten it done. He switches to Corey. His last race was pretty good, as was the one two back; seems to like CD; hasn't really shown a willingness to close yet; top speed average, though; cost $280k.

#3 ran a good race under Florent ATDS against cheaper, even after hopping at the start; gelded since last, and Joe Sharp's pretty good. Possible, I think, at decent odds.

#4's last three races were better than anyone else's, all routes; he was 2nd or 3rd in all three at the stretch call, but didn't have the lead in any at that point; now he shortens. Problematic? Good work since; switches to Tyler for Maker, a topflight combo; but it's significant that Ortiz couldn't win with him in three tries, two against much cheaper; cost $370k, beautifully bred.

Don't see much hope for #5, but hey, it's a maiden, he has some good works, and he's bred well. Probably has about as much right to win as anyone.

#6's last work, one week ago, was a good one; gets a warm jock in Julien; well bred for the distance and surface; some good works; who knows?

#7 has some decent numbers, but has not been closer than 4th in his four races; gelded since last; ran his best race at 6f; been in three key races to no effect; if he could run back to that sprint four back he might have a shot, but I don't think he will; cost $550k; best breeding for the distance.

#8 is 3rd off; ran a big fig in last (86) in a 6f dirt sprint here, but came in 4th; good works, but none since; switches to Bejarano; if he runs that race again he might win against this crowd; cost $200k; chance of repeating lifetime high fig? Beats me; look it up; maybe Bejarano can get him to close?

#9 well bred horse for the distance and surface; some nice works; one of many that could do it.

#10 has never been on the dirt, but has some very good dirt works; takes off the blinkers (28%), probably because he closed pretty well in his last; steps 'way up; hasn't run since October; you'd think overmatched, but you never know.

I think the sheets have it right; one of the top four should win. I think it may be #4. But remember, it's a maiden.

#1 is an early speed horse without much early speed; possible pace factor unless all the other jockeys go brain dead and let him coast around and win. Hey, it happens.

#2 is a decent turf horse whose figures are well below the best in here; ran well in last, ATDS, after getting bumped; don't see it, though, even with Santana and Maker.

#3 is in about the same class as #2, above.

#4 is 3rd off, BTL in last, here, ATDS; keeps Beschizza; no wins last year or this; mediocre works; contender, but don't see her at 5-2.

#5 is another early speed horse without much early speed; drops, keeps Murrill; good works since; numbers are okay, but not her finish.

#6 more early speed without much early speed; pass.

#7 Third off, BTL in last (on dirt); adequate figs; keeps BJ for Foley; good works, but none since; hasn't yet run a race that would win this.

#8 Aha. An early speed horse that actually has some early speed; can also close; gets Tyler for Cox; mediocre works; failed as fave in last two, both ATDS; best races have been on synthetic; maybe Tyler can wake her up, but not for me at 8-5.

#10 is 3rd off, but still looks overmatched.

I guess I'll be looking at the 4, 7, and 8 - not necessarily in that order.
