Here are the HorseSheets for Tampa Bay 11-23. I've added comments for myself in an attempt to look at everything and not forget my impressions.

#1 hit the gate and didn't finish his only dirt race; only good figure (75) was a year ago on synthetic; drops and switches to Spanabel for Kathleen; might shock everyone, but the odds would have to skyrocket for me to consider betting him. #2 almost wired the field at this level three back, but couldn't keep up in his last; 1 for 23 eight year old; not for me. #3's last five races rank second to #7 in here; steps up; has never raced at Tampa; switches to 8% rider for an ofer barn; can see him on figs but not on class. #4, a 1 for 21 horse, looks suspiciously like more of a synthetic track than dirt; has a couple of very good works on dirt since last race; but dirt figs don't match up; drops back down; switches to excellent connections, so the works may show a change of heart for the surface, but I can't count on it at 2-1. #5 broke his maiden in February at Delta, and that's about been it; however all except one of his last ten races have been against tougher; ran of figs 8 months ago that might win this; has an okay work since; can't bet him to wake up. #6 is a 1-21 horse stepping up with average figs; however, this 7 year old is 3rd off a layoff, and Madeline rode him well earlier this year here at Tampa; those two things make me think she might get at least a small piece here. #7 has been running at Belterra; broke his maiden three back after 13 tries; has a good work since his last race; showed a little quickness in his maiden breaker; don't see the value.

It seems that each of these horses will have to do something they haven't done in a while to win, which makes it a lousy betting race for me. #4 may be the most probable winner, but I can't bet him seriously at 2-1. I might take a little shot with #6 to do something, but would not weep if the money was lost.

#1's best race was on turf; steps up; shortens to best distance; drops a bit; switches to Fuentes. #2 in from GP; 3rd off; switch to Diaz (15%) for O'Connell (15%). #3 is a FTS with some pretty good works; good connections but ofer with FTS. #4 also good connections; well bred for TDS; good works; possible. #5 2rd best avg figs for last 5; switch to Madeline (13%) for 15% trainer; beaten by #2 in last; boring work since; can close. #6 best figs; drops, switch to Castanon (12%) for Proctor (24%); boring work since; looks like she wants the front end; others are as quick or quicker. #2 could get the lead if Diaz pushes her; if that happens she could go all the way. However, one or both of the two first timers could pop for it. #6 has the best figs, but she'll have to learn to close to win. I'd probably go with the first time starters, who haven't shown us they can't run yet.

#1 gives her lowest tag another try; ran okay at it in last; switch to Gallardo (16%) for 18% trainer, likes the front end, may get it. Looks like if #2 was ever going to win another one, he would have won his last; drops one more notch, to the bottom. #3 also makes his last drop – to the bottom; some trouble in last; one boring work since; not sold. #4's 11th try at the bottom; pass. #5 is 0 for 11 at Tam; at least 0 for 10 at Belterra, where he's been racing; decent work since; don't see it. #6 drops back to lowest level; faint Z pattern in last on the turf; 0 for 7 ATDS; turf to dirt, nice work, drop, and jockey switch say he might wake up; very risky possible for a piece. #7 just looks out of it, even though she takes off her blinkers today. #8 has run a few decent races ATDS; nothing lately; jockey switch for first in new barn (5%); another with wakeup possibilities for a piece. #9 overwhelms the field in figs; presser/closer; drops to lowest level; work since, his first for a tag; won two earlier this year against tougher at Tampa; obvious choice for win if he can still run at ten years old. #10 has run at this level at least three times without success; prefers the front end, but #1 looks quicker; has closed against better – a long time ago; trainer has good record (19%) with shippers; one of four with best last race figure.

#1 should go for the lead; if he gets it he may be gone or #9 may catch him. #10 may get a piece; so may #6 and #8.

Oh, joy! Another maiden. #1 has run all three races on synthetic, with little result; moves from GP, has a stunning work there on dirt a month ago; picks up Arroyo for first after claim by new ofer trainer. #2 tries turf after last three on synthetic; switches to Ferrer; drops; boring works; likes front end but isn't very quick. #3 first time turf; first time at a route; first time with 5% trainer; pass. #4 drop/switch; trouble in only race; first on turf; not really bred for it; who knows? #5 drops, switch to Villalobos; pretty good turf breeding; trouble in last; another question mark. The rest all look pretty lacklustre, including #11, who is taking the blinkers off.

This is a definite pick 'em. Pick a name or a jockey color. None have ever been on turf, and half of them have never run a route. So failing the possibility of picking anyone with any confidence, I'll look at #1 for his outstanding work which may mean he gets an easy lead, #5 for his breeding, and #11 for his equipment change. But I won't bet much, if anything.

#1 and #2 come out of the same race, where they dueled each other and tired. Now they both drop to a lower level. #1 has the best overall figs and has showed some closing ability, where #2 has not. #3 also likes the front end, drops to his lowest level, had a brilliant work before his last, against tougher, in which he had trouble; has the class but not the figs; excellent connections. #4 also likes the front end, but isn't quick enough; has shown some small ability to close; won his last, against this kind; shortens a bit; contributes to the pace? #5 is –you guessed it – another one who likes the front end; showed some good quickness last year here; has three wins in last ten ATDS against cheaper. #6 has a good dirt fig in his distant past, but has been on synthetic for his last nine with two wins, both against better; did win on dirt in April at Haw with a 70 Bris; returns to a NLL on the form; sometimes that wakes them up. In #7's first race after claim he gave up and walked home; gets Arroyo for 6% trainer; been claimed four times on the form; races for less than half the price of his last race; burn works; Nope. #8 has some decent figs ATDS; third off; Samy stays for Romero (15%); no works since last.

If #1 gets the lead he may go all the way; if he doesn't he might be able to close on the other front runner candidates; looks like the most probable, but probably will go off at unsupportable odds. #6 and #8 seem to be the best closers if the pace dies. I'm going to look closely at #3; with the drop and the connections and the work a month or so ago he may be able to run a fig that will win this – if Lozada doesn't try to wear him out on the front end.

#1 stretches out to what is arguably her best distance, although she hasn't won at it; stays; gets Castanon back; will probably go for the lead again and may get it against this bunch. #2 also stretches out; BTL; broke her maiden at a route in her first race, here in March; ran against this kind in her last, was steadied, still ran okay. #3 first on turf; has run reasonably well on dirt and synthetic but has only hit the exacta once. #4 cuts her price in half; gets Rojas back; not convinced. #5 has ok races ATDS; drop/switch to Morales (25%) for ofer trainer; has just ok figs on turf; sinks to a NLL; boring works; possible. #6 good works; good figs; best fig was her last race, on synthetic; keeps Gallardo; ok work; BTL in last 3 races; could win but I don't like her. #7 doesn't show me much:1 for 43 on turf. #8 drops a bit from dirt races at DEL; turf stats just okay, but no wins on the grass. #9 BTL ATDS at Monmouth a month against similar; keeps Samy; hs raced against this kind at least four times without a win; hasn't won this year; gives one pause. #10 doesn't look like much of a threat. #11 (MTO) just broke her maiden in a 5k miaden claimer (doesn't get much cheaper than that) on a wet/fast track; has run two races on turf, both stinky. #12 and #13 (AE's) don't look like much of a threat if they get it. #14 looks a little better, but we'll look at her a little more closely if she gets in.
#1 looks to be the quickest in here; Castanon knows by now the only good place for a horse in the one-hole is out in front, so we'll give her the front end pretty easily. Who will give chase? I start looking at jockeys and find Morales on #5, but I'm not crazy about his horse. I'll also look at #9 and #6, both BTL's, with Gallardo and Samy up respectively. But this looks like one of those chaos races where just about anything could happen.

Well, #1 went for the lead in his last and failed miserably from the one-hole; tried for the lead all three races and lost all three; drops a bit coming from GP and switches to Mena; will probably try it again. #2 also goes for the lead every time and has only gotten there once in 10 tries. #3's pretty much the same as #2 and #1, although he has been significantly quicker in the past, and has a couple of nice works in his history. #4 are you kidding? Another horse who want the lead and doesn't know what to do with it when he gets it. #5 didn't finish his only race against much, much tougher; gets L1 today; impossible to estimate his chances. #6 drops a bit and gets Morales, coming from a race at Colonial in which he pretty much didn't run; boring works, bad trainer stats; does have a turf race fig that might win this, but that was a year ago against much tougher, and he lost by 13 lengths; head scratcher. #7 is 0 for 3 on the turf with a remarkably low speed figure average (37), hasn't run on the turf this year until now. The 0 for 21 #8's last six were on dirt; ran okay on turf last year; Centeno gets up; if he remembers her turf form he could be a contender. #9 basically hasn't run a step in his last four, but ran a decent race on the turf at Tam in May (67) to lose by a neck against slightly tougher, gets blinkers back on today, so might be one to watch. Not even going to discuss #10. #11 ran a dirt sprint in his only race to date, showed some quickness and tired; has some turf in his background; hasn't run since December; decent works; decent connections; can't dismiss.

Like some other races today, an undecipheral hodgepodge. So I look to speed for starters, and find #3 and #11. #9 gets blinks and shortens, so must also consider. After that, the barn door's open. Maybe #8 or #6, or even #7.

#1, a presser/closer, hasn't run on dry dirt for a while, but has evidently done pretty well on it in the distant past; comes from LAD with a month layoff. #2, a nine-year-old, is 18 of 38 in the money on dirt; sports competitive figs; drop/switch to Lozada (22%) for 3rd race since Arnett (25%) claimed him; wants the front and has some good quickness; good works since; obvious contender. #3 didn't do much against tougher at Monmouth in last, but broke his maiden two back here, then beat $25k claimers, also here; okay works; Diaz stays for Kathleen; can contend. #4 has the top figures overall; gets Batista back for 16% trainer; been in the tri 6 out of his last ten, mostly against tougher; runs well at Tampa under Batista; top pick? #5 broke his maiden in last at Del with a 77; keeps Centeno; good works since; your call. #6 won a race ATDS against tougher at Prairie two back with a good fig (83); drops, switches to Morales for Arnett; great connections; presser/closer; may be a bet at a price. #7's only run on dirt twice in the past ten, with disappointing results; good connections; BTL against tougher on synthetic in last, at Pid; will have to find his dirt form and improve on it to be a contender. #8 was bet down to nothing on the turf when he broke his maiden here in last; nice figure here two back against $35k maidens (76); back after seven month layoff with some good works; can't count out. #9 appears to be better than his ML odds; last three figs average 83; excellent work since last; one to watch the tote on. #10 ran a 91 against similar at GP two back and only placed; ran an 82 against tougher at GP in last and finished up the track; drop/switch to Samy (18%) for 20% trainer; should be in the hunt.

#2 will probably try for the lead, perhaps with #5 and/or #8 right with him. When they tire, I expect #4 and/or #9 or #10 to take over. Since #9 will probably have the highest odds, I may take a fiver on him.

#1 has been BTL in last two; in from Hawthorne; steps up a bit for excellent connections: Lozada (22%) and Arnett (25%); beaten by #10 in last; should go for the front end. #2 back after 4-month layoff; mediocre works; 0 for 6 on dirt, don't think so. #3's last four races have been awful, had trouble in two of them; has run three that would be competitive in here, all against tougher; first with Villalobos in McGooey barn (7%); mediocre works; highly improbable but not impossible. #4 evidetly runs her best races on turf; switches to Arroyo, stays at the same level; may have already won her race for the year. #5 has only one race on dirt, a decent fig (73) and third place; suspect connections; switch to Flores (2%); wants to wire. #6 had a couple of races at Mth that would make her competitive in here; won two back at this level; switch to Jimenez (6%); comes off three-month layoff with okay works; don't think so. #7 won at this level in April, but not since; Samy takes over for Barboza (18%); comes in from GP after a 45 day layoff; a contender. #8 was a BTL against tougher in her last; switches to Madeline (13%) for Delgado (21%); likes the front end and has some quickness; can close if necessary; contender. #9 won against cheaper four back with a nice figure (76), his best lifetime; lost his last two against cheaper; would probably have to repeat his lifetime best to figure in here. #10 is pretty light on figures; switches to Morales for the second after claim by Arnett (25%), so that may move her up in the balloting. #11 drops, switches to Spieth (12%); has been racing on synthetic; ran a lifetime dirt best 8 back (73); now sinks back to a winning level; possible, but not for me.

It's always a guessing game, but #5 might be the quickest in here. There should at least be a pace duel, with the #1, #2, #3, and/or #5. Which, depending on track tendencies, might leave it open for #8 and/or #7. In the end, I may settle on #7 to catch #5.
